

Don't Merely "Stop" a Cough

Stop the thing that causes it and the cough will stop itself.

A cough is really one of our best friends. It warns us that there is inflammation or obstruction in a dangerous place. Therefore, when you get a bad cough don't proceed to dose yourself with a lot of drugs that merely "stop" the cough temporarily by deadening the throat nerves. Treat the cause—kill the inflamed membranes. Here is a homemade remedy that gets right at the cause and will make an obstinate cough vanish more quickly than you ever thought possible.

Put 2½ ounces of Pinex (50 cents worth) in a pint bottle and fill the bottle with plain granulated sugar syrup. This gives you a full pint of the most pleasant and effective cough remedy you ever used, at a cost of only 54 cents. No bother to prepare. Full directions with Pinex. To avoid disappointment, ask your druggist for "2½ ounces of Pinex," and don't accept anything else. A guarantee of absolute satisfaction, or money promptly refunded, goes with this preparation. ## GIRLS—DO YOU KNOW WHY YOUR HAIR IS UGLY?

Abigail Moore, the noted beauty authority, says: "The hair is a register of the physical condition. Cleanliness and massage, as well as careful combing and brushing, are most important. Many women do not realize the necessity of keeping the hair and scalp absolutely clean in order to look their best at all times. And yet, with only a few minutes of tonic massage, the hair may be brought to a beautiful, thick, lustrous luxuriance, and that at very little cost. Just try these few simple directions today: Into the palm of the hand pour a little Parian Sage, a rigidly guaranteed, inexpensive and most beneficial preparation to be used after shampooing, thoroughly wash the hair near the scalp with it, and then rub vigorously until a soft, tingling sensation comes over the head. Do this regularly for a few days, and occasionally your brush with the tonic and gently brush out the hair—you will surely be surprised and delighted with the results. The genuine Parian Sage is obtained from any of O'Donnell's Drug Stores, which will sell it with an absolute guarantee of perfect satisfaction to the user, or the money paid will be returned.—Advertisement."

Hair Tinting All the Rage

The Absolute and Utter Harmlessness of "Brownatone" Has Made Hair Tinting Safe and Easy.

You need not tolerate gray, streaked or faded hair another day. It takes but a few moments to apply "Brownatone" with your comb or brush, and you will find it just a little "touching-up" once a month should keep your hair the beautiful shade you most desire. Results always the same—always pleasing. Will not rub or wash off and guaranteed to contain none of the dangerous ingredients so often found in "dyes." Prepared in gold or medium brown, the old-fashioned black, or the new "Brownatone" is sold in 25c and $1.00. Order direct from Kamm's Pharmacy Co., 648 E. Pike Street, Cincinnati, O. If you druggist will not supply you, you will save yourself much annoyance for $1.00 by accepting a sample of "Brownatone" at your hair-dresser's. For sale in Washington by People's Drug House and J. D. O'Donnell's Drug Store and other leading dealers.—Advertisement.

SCOTCH PLAIDS FOR SPRING WEAR.

BY ANNE RITTENHOUSE.

Special Correspondence of The Star.
NEW YORK, February 9.—Soon after the war broke out and waves of romantic enthusiasm spread to and from the Scottish regiments that played a major heroic part in the first great battles and whose picturesque uniforms set fire to the French fancy, the dressmakers tried to make plaid fashionable.

It was easy to see from the month of August, 1914, that, of all the troops coming to the aid of France, none created more delight than the regiments from the Highlands. Had you gone, as we did, through the villages where these troops were quartered, or through the seacoast towns, where they disembarked from the transports, you would have felt just as the French felt.

All the other British troops were dressed in their khaki uniforms, but the color, the swagger and the laughter of these Scottish troops stimulated the imagination.

The French designers quickly saw it, and Scotch caps and black velvet coats and tartan skirts were exploited. It is not improbable that the high boot with the very short skirt above, showing a bit of the stocking, was, after all, suggested by the high stockings and kilts of the fusiliers.

Plaid Comes Into Its Own.

With the exception of the Scottish bonnet and these high boots, with the short skirt, the costumes of the Highlanders did not make a strong impression upon prevailing fashions. Even the bonnet, the darling black velvet cap with its gay band of ribbon, was only tentatively worn by a few dashing young women.

However, the new gowns from Paris, sent over before the semi-annual openings, were strong with wind. In these clothes there are plaids and plaids. Before the spring comes women are taking up these Scotch fashions.

Marie Tempest, whose clothes are always models for all women, was probably the first of the actresses to adopt for her street suit a short skirt of black and white Scotch plaid and a short velvet coat, with a collar and cuffs of plaid cloth. The little Scotch bonnet without the two dangling ribbons at the back made its appearance in the streets. It is now a smart bit of morning headgear. Plaid stockings are making their appearance and are worn in the country with rough suits and heavy half shoes.

There is much danger in the general adoption of Scotch plaids; they unduly excite the figure into a patchwork quilt, and even the most odd advocate of fashion does not find this desirable. If they are to be generally worn, they must be handled with keen perception of the right line. Entire gowns of plaid, no matter what the fabric, are not to be commended.

Velvet Coats With Plaid Skirts.

France has sent over a new street suit which carries out, as far as it is feasible, the idea of the Scotch regiments. There is a short skirt of plaid silk laid in wide, unstitched box pleats and a coat above it of dark blue velvet. It has a belt, deep cuffs and a wide turnover collar of the material of the skirt. The coat fastens with two silver buttons, one at the top and one at the waist, and there is a huge, square, Scotch silver belt buckle. The Scotch bonnet that goes with this suit is of blue velvet minus the flying streamers at the back. All the milliners seem determined to omit these.

me any more, but getting enough to drink is another matter these bitter cold days. If it wasn't for jolly, bright Mr. Sun I don't know what I should do. Of course I could fly over to the Big River to the place that never freezes, but that is a long way to go for a drink."

Peter looked puzzled. Getting a drink is the least of Peter's worries. In fact, it doesn't bother him if he has to go a long time without drinking. But he knew that it was very different with some of his neighbors and that they had to have water quite often. What puzzled him now was what jolly, bright Mr. Sun could have to do with getting Tommy Tit a drink. He said as much. Tommy's sharp little eyes twinkled.

"Phoebe! Phoebe! See me! See me!" he cried, gaily, and flew to a twig from the tip of which a tiny icicle hung. On the very end of the icicle a drop of water glistened. Jolly, bright Mr. Sun had been shining on that icicle until it had melted ever so little and so formed that tiny drop of water. Tommy Tit clung to the twig upside down and reached for the drop of water. But somehow he shook it off before he could get his mouth under it. He just laughed and flew to another tiny icicle with a glistening drop of water. This time he seemed to throw himself backward in the air right under the shining drop and in a flash it was gone.

"That is what you were doing when I first saw you, and I thought you were just cutting antic for fun," cried Peter. "I never saw such a funny way of getting a drink before."

"I don't care how funny it is as long as I get the water," replied Tommy. "But let me tell you, Peter, it isn't everybody who can get a drink this way. It takes lots of practice to learn how."

Flemish Soup.

To two pounds of washed and picked Brussels sprouts add ten potatoes, two onions, two leeks, salt and pepper. Cook all gently and pass through a sieve. Add at the last moment a sprinkling of chopped chervil.

Spread with butter, fit with a thin slice of boiled ham, cover with a crisp lettuce leaf and a little mayonnaise, add a neat slice of chicken or other poultry, covered with another lettuce leaf, top with another piece of bread. Place in the toaster and brown quickly on top and bottom. Serve.

Oyster Pie.
Make pastry or puff paste, bake and when cold fill with the following: Cook together a tablespoonful each of butter and flour; pour on them a cup of cream and a gill of oyster liquor and stir to a smooth sauce. Drop in the oysters and cook, stirring steadily until the edges begin to curl; remove from the fire and beat in gradually the yolk of an egg. Pour into the pastry and set in the oven until the pastry and contents are very hot.

vogue to make sheer materials so they will impart a floating effect to the wearer. The type of skirt shown here is admirable in serge, for morning wear on the street, or day wear at any time except when calling. For calling purposes the skirt should be made of ladies' cloth, or one of the finer fabrics used for dressy purposes. Now that skirts are so much trimmed it is sometimes the fashion to adorn the lower portions of box pleats, in a dressy gown, with appliques of braid ornaments. In this case the jacket or waist must have some of the same ornaments.

LITTLE JOURNEYS INTO FASHION LAND
The whole appearance of one's figure in a waist-and-skirt suit depends upon the set of the skirt. Among the new skirts there is a general fancy for pleated ones on account of the excellent set of this style and because they are always graceful. This design of a box-pleated skirt is in one piece, and it may be stitched down at the top or allowed to hang loose, after the pleats are pressed, according to how slender or how plump your figure may be. The stout woman should have the tops of
